

Did you get a message, “A potentially dangerous macro has been blocked,”?*

Some students run into problems when working in MS Access and creating macros, such as when creating queries. (I think of macros as being little programs that run within the application. You don’t see them and they can be very helpful. However, you must make sure the files you use are created by trustworthy people, otherwise malicious code may hide in a macro.)

If you receive a message that a macro has been blocked, see the information on Microsoft’s support site to help you get past the problem.

*<https://support.microsoft.com/en-us/topic/a-potentially-dangerous-macro-has-been-blocked-0952faa0-37e7-4316-b61d-5b5ed6024216>